

Simple cash organization, without bank or investing cues.

LedgerLite helps people organize cash for bills and near-term needs. The brand should feel calm, practical and product-led. It must never imply that LedgerLite is a bank, insured deposit product, investment advisor or source of guaranteed returns.

Brand character

- Trustworthy, useful and modern
- Clear about what the product is not
- Product interface before lifestyle imagery
- Household planning, not wealth aspiration

Typography

Use a clean, open sans-serif with a strong headline and straightforward supporting copy. Avoid condensed poster type, serif wealth branding, distressed lettering and exaggerated financial numerals.

Organize money, simply

Clear labels and calm supporting copy.

Required behavior

- Use a horizontal LedgerLite wordmark for paid social.
- Place it in the top-left safe area on a light or quiet field.
- Preserve clear space around the mark.
- Do not rebuild the mark from text or use a web-header export.

Diagram only - choose the actual approved file from the asset register.

Avoid

- bank shields, seals or government-style emblems
- stacked legacy identities for current mobile feed
- future marks that are not active on the launch date
- regional or partner wordmarks for the US-EN campaign

Phone UI direction

- Show a mobile interface with reserve buckets, balances and a reminder.
- The current interface should be readable enough to identify its core structure.
- Do not substitute investing, crypto, yield or small-business screens.
- Do not crop the product so heavily that the bucket organization is lost.

Lifestyle support

A calm household planning scene may sit behind or beside the phone. Use it as context, not as the primary message. Avoid piles of cash, distressed debt imagery, stock-market screens, credit cards or luxury symbols.

Reading order

- Logo and product name
- Headline and supporting line
- Product UI with secondary household image
- CTA
- Required disclosure in the bottom safe area

Schematic only - use the active platform row for exact dimensions and margins.

Disclosure

Not a bank. No investment advice.

Prohibited active claims

- APY, yield, high-yield or interest-rate claims
- Guaranteed returns, risk-free savings or beat-inflation promises
- FDIC-insured or government-backed language
- Crypto yield, portfolio-performance claims, or claims that LedgerLite provides investment advice

Prohibited visual signals

- bank seals, government crests or credit-card-network logos
- lock icons or shields that imply insurance or deposit protection
- gold wealth styling, green stock charts or crypto coins
- cash piles used as the main campaign image

A lock icon used as a normal device control is not automatically prohibited; the issue is using it as a prominent trust badge or insurance signal.
